

The Planning Challenge

- Get specialist help when you most need it
- Independent review of your Business Planning Process and assistance with Governance Compliance

Business Analysts and Finance professionals today are required to perform dynamic planning and analysis in a volatile business environment. Many are finding that their departments are under stress at certain times of the year during the in-house Planning cycle period. It is often difficult for personnel to skill up quickly as many areas of expertise are required, these include:

- Detailed knowledge of the business sector that you operate in
- Accounting knowledge
- Excel Expertise
- Forecasting and Planning Expertise
- Knowledge of your business software and related processes

Excel is Everywhere

Microsoft Excel™ is still abundant within organisations, where it is used to join up costly and fragmented solutions. Designed as a personal productivity tool, spreadsheets are ill-equipped for the heavy processing demands of a performance management environment. They are two dimensional, overly complex, prone to errors and lack security.
